

Don Soegaard

From: "Don Soegaard" <don@soeg.net>
Date: Sunday, April 23, 2017 8:37 AM
To: <Undisclosed-Recipient:>
Subject: Saving health care in America

If Congress doesn't have the guts to repeal Obamacare, they should at least reopen the doors to free market competition by implementing the 4 points listed below:

- 1) Remove the Obamacare requirement that all people must carry medical insurance or be fined.
- 2) Allow insurance companies to offer competing policies (such as catastrophic only) with no government mandates or strings attached
- 3) Enforce the original intent of the Commerce Clause by mandating that states not restrict insurance companies from competing across state lines
- 4) Require that Obamacare and all its regulatory functions and subsidies be self-supporting through the subscriber/user fees—with zero net cost to the taxpayer.

By implementing the above 4 points, we could restore competition and save the free market system in regard to health care.

Maybe this can go viral sufficient to reach the desk of President Trump.